I consider myself to be a quality candidate with a strong background in problem solving, teaching others, and organisational skills. I have held positions in the past that have broadened my skill set beyond one particular industry, which has provided me with the transferrable skills required to make an impact in your business. I am seeking an entry level position using the Rails framework in order to build and develop web applications. I am a process drive, goal setting individual that is motivated to contribute to a team environment, and to deliver database driven products while developing new skills.
